Stop Death by PowerPoint at Conference Presentations

Session Facilitator

Wilma M. Andrews
Virginia Commonwealth University
Department of Information Systems
Richmond, VA. 23284-4000, 804-827-0956, wandrews@vcu.edu

ABSTRACT

This session will overview new trends in presentations which will hopefully encourage all presenters to rethink how they currently do conference presentations. Topics will include how the brain processes information and why bullet points and lots of text just lead to "Death by PowerPoint". There will be tips and tricks gathered from Microsoft PowerPoint MVP's and other presentation professionals. The session will also cover some of the newer PowerPoint features in 2010 and 2013, tools that attendees can use to give new looks to their presentations. The goal of the session is to promote more effective and interesting conference presentations and to encourage attendees to also rethink how they can redo classroom presentations using some of these trends and tools.